STATESBORO, GEORGIA

Statesboro, located 55 miles northwest of Georgia's oldest city, Savannah, was laid out in 1803 as the county seat of Bulloch County. One of the writers of that day observed after a trip through the territory, "Statesboro is a small villiage and the seat of Bulloch County, an area of very poor land."

Many changes have been wrought since that day. Bulloch County is one of the most productive and progressive agricultural counties in the United States today. It has nine Master Farmers, more than any county in the nation. One was selected in the first group of Master Farmers named in 1927. In 1959 more than $11,000,000 of farm products were marketed from a diversified array including livestock, poultry products, peanuts, cotton, tobacco, dairy products, and truck and orchard crops.

Statesboro, a city of over 8,000 population, is the commercial center serving this agricultural complex in Bulloch and surrounding counties. To perform this function, Statesboro has one fertilizer mixer and several major dealers, two farmers' cooperative associations, seven farm machinery dealers, several tobacco warehouses, two stock-yards and numerous other supply, processing and distribution firms.

Two local manufacturing firms are based upon agricultural production. A meat packing firm produces a complete line of beef and port products which are distributed over the Southeast. The second, Braswell Food Company, based originally upon the local pear crop and an idea for a unique product, now produces an extensive line of preserves, pickles, and drinks which are distributed from New England to the Southwest.

The extensive forest resources of the area provide the base for three saw-mill companies. Serving as an assembly point for the surrounding area, Statesboro ships large quantities of pulp-wood to paper mills in Savannah.

Two major manufacturing firms have moved to Statesboro in recent years. The Rockwell Manufacturing Company, in its Statesboro Division, produces a complete line of metering equipment and maintains a research and development laboratory. A & M Karagheusian, Inc., manufacturers of Gullistan Rugs, operates its wool buying and yarn manufacturing plant at Statesboro. In 1958, before A & M Karagheusian and a number of smaller firms were in operation, the total value added by manufacturing in the county exceeded $4,000,000.

Located on U.S. 301, a major route from New York to Florida, Statesboro has attempted to live up to its claim of being "The Tourist City" by providing extensive accommodations for travelers. Sixteen motels, in addition to the supporting restaurants, have been constructed within the last ten years.

Although it is a satellite to Savannah, Statesboro draws retail trade from a wide surrounding territory. The complete selection of retail stores which the city affords, achieved sales of more than $18,000,000 in 1958.

Of all of its businesses and industries, however, Statesboro is proudest of what is fondly referred to as its leading industry: Georgia Southern College.

Gentlemen:

Dr. Paul Wischkaemper of the Division of Business is serving as sponsor for a group of Business Administration students, who are interested in obtaining a chapter of the International Fraternity, Delta Sigma Pi. For the past five years we have been offering a major in Business Administration, and the division has grown considerably. We have many fine students in the major, and I am in favor of the Business Division applying for a chapter in the International Fraternity.

The college has an enrollment now of approximately 2,000, and the enrollment has doubled during the past five years. It is our feeling that the college will continue to grow, and this will also be true in Business Administration.

Sincerely yours,

HISTORY

The college originated as one of ten district agricultural and mechanical schools established through a legislative bill introduced by the Honorable H. H. Perry of Hall County and actively supported by Governor Joseph M. Terrell. To secure the location of the First District school, the people of Statesboro and Bulloch County gave 300 acres of land, installed and furnished lights free for ten years, and contributed $25,000.00 in cash. At first no appropriation was made by the state for maintenance, the provision being that all funds derived from fertilizer and oil inspections fees would be utilized for the support of the district schools. This arrangement proved unsatisfactory and was replaced in 1911 by an appropriation bill of the legislature with annual allocations for maintenance.

The First District Agricultural and Mechanical School was opened on February 7, 1908, and continued as such until August, 1924, serving on an elementary and secondary level. During this period, however, the school maintained a special course for teachers. Seventy per cent of the women graduates entered the teaching field.

With the rapid expansion of public school enrollments following World War I, the growing need for teachers became the concern of the people of Southeast Georgia and of the State Department of Education of Georgia. Under the sponsorship of the Board of Trustees, a legislative enactment converting the First District A. and M. School into the Georgia Normal School was passed. It was approved by the Governor Cliff Walker on August 24, 1924.

In the following four years Georgia Normal School developed rapidly to the status of a four-year institution. The degree of B.S. in Education was conferred for the first time to members of the June graduating class in 1929, and in the summer of 1929 the legislature passed a bill changing the name of the school from Georgia Normal School to South Georgia Teachers College.

In 1931, the tax-supported colleges, previously under the management of separate Boards of Trustees, were placed under the control of a single board, the Board of Regents, and all the institutions of higher learning were coordinated into the University System of Georgia. In 1939 the Board of Regents changed the name of the college from South Georgia Teachers College to Georgia Teachers College.

GEORGIA SOUTHERN COLLEGE

STATESBORO, GEORGIA

The name of the college was again changed on December 9, 1959, by the Board of Regents, from Georgia Teachers College to Georgia Southern College. In recent years the objectives of the college have been enlarged to include programs leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Science in Recreation, Master of Arts, and Master of Education, as well as the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education. The new name more adequately reflects the function of the college.

Dear Sir:

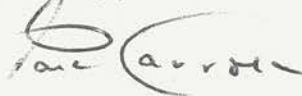

The members of a local business education honorary fraternity at Georgia Southern College, Beta Alpha Sigma, are submitting a petition to you for the establishment of a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

I am more than glad to sanction the petition and express the hope that it may merit your earnest consideration.

The business administration program at the college has developed rapidly in the past several years and is one of our most promising fields of study.

The establishment of a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi, I am sure, would be of inestimable value to the young men in the field of business education; and from my knowledge of the quality of the students and the leadership in the program, I am confident that a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi here will reflect credit on the national organization.

Sincerely,

Dear Sir:

We are delighted to support the proposal of the men in Beta Alpha Sigma to Delta Sigma Pi for admission as a chapter of your organization.

While our campus has a modest number of honorary and service fraternal organizations, we do not have an organization of professional business administration for men with a national affiliation. From our perspective, it would be helpful to do so. This type of national association would give added prestige to a rapidly expanding academic division, as well as encouragement to the outstanding young men who have chosen to major in this field.

As a member of the University of Georgia Pi Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi and as Dean of Students at Georgia Southern College it is my considered judgment that the formation of a chapter here on this campus would be mutually beneficial to all concerned.

Respectfully yours,

Grand Council

Dear Sir:

My first contact with the group of students comprising Beta Alpha Sigma occurred in November, 1962 when a number of them came to me to explore the possibilities of forming a chapter of a national business administration fraternity on this campus. It has been most gratifying to observe the progress that the group has made since that date. It gives me pleasure, therefore, to support their petition to become affiliated with Delta Sigma Pi.

Since I have been at Georgia Southern College, my efforts have been directed toward developing a program in business administration based upon high standards of scholarship, sound curriculum, and a strong faculty. As we have made marked progress toward this objective, it has been a source of personal satisfaction to me to see the manner in which these students have chosen to contribute to this objective through their efforts to establish a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi. I believe that such a chapter would be a major force in contributing to a professional attitude toward the study of business administration.

The formation of this chapter has my own enthusiastic support and the full support of all of the faculty of the Division of Business. While the professional interests of some members of our Division's faculty cause them to devote more attention to Phi Beta Lambda and Pi Omega Pi, they view a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi as something which would strengthen the program of the Division and, therefore, the other organizations affiliated with the Division. Indeed, some of the most enthusiastic encouragement for formation of a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi has come from Professor Jane White who is advisor to our chapter of Pi Omega Pi and closely associated with Phi Beta Lambda.

The impact of Delta Sigma Pi at this college could be very significant. We are currently planning in terms of an enrollment of 3,000 students by 1965. It is expected that 900 of these will be in the Division of Business and 750 will be majoring in some option in business administration. Among this group, Delta Sigma Pi can have a great deal of leverage toward improving our program in education for business.

Sincerely yours,

Paul G. LaGrone, Ph.D.
Chairman, Division of Business

HISTORY OF BUSINESS AT GEORGIA SOUTHERN

Courses related to business have been offered at Georgia Southern for many years. In 1925, for example, three courses were offered in bookkeeping and accounting in addition to courses in secretarial subjects. By 1933 a course was offered in each of business law and salesmanship.

During the earlier years, the purpose of business courses was to offer electives to those who expected to enter office and clerical positions. By 1947, however, when the Division of Business was created, the primary purpose had become that of training high-school teachers. While several secretarial courses were added to the offering, a course in introduction to business and a course in income tax accounting were the only ones added to the offerings in business administration from 1947 to 1958.

In 1959 two more courses in accounting and one course in each of money and banking and statistics were added to the offerings.

Effective in the fall quarter of 1960, the College was authorized by the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia to initiate a major in business administration leading to the B.S. degree. At that time, several courses were added in accounting, finance, management, and marketing. By the fall quarter of 1962, 331 students were enrolled in the general-business program, with an additional 75 students in secretarial administration and 107 in business education. While most of those following the programs in business education and secretarial administration were women, almost all of those in the general-business program were men.

In the fall of 1962, the curriculum of the Division of Business was classified into two major parts for administrative purposes: business administration and business education. With this division, several options were provided under the B.S. in business administration degree. While it is the objective within each of these options to provide the student with a sound background of liberal education which will enable him to view in broad perspective the role of business management and to appreciate the cultural values in our society, each one is designed to provide a different type of specialization in order to tailor the student's professional training to broad classes of needs in business management.

The accounting option provides instruction in the basic principles and techniques of accounting and their application in auditing, cost control, taxation, and managerial services. It prepares the students for careers in public, industrial, and governmental accounting.

The finance option allows specialization in the areas of financial institutions and the application of managerial techniques to problems in financial management. It is designed to prepare students for careers in management of the financial operations of industrial and commercial firms, management of financial institutions, and in the operation of agencies in the real estate and insurance fields.

The general-business option is designed for students who choose to follow a diversified program in business administration. Whereas the other options provide for certain kinds of specialization, this program allows the student to specialize in accordance with his own specific needs or to obtain somewhat more breadth of training in two or more fields of business administration. This option is especially useful to prepare students for careers in small-business management.

The management option provides training in the principles and techniques of personnel and production management. It prepares students for positions in personnel management in all types of business firms, and for careers in production management in industrial and commercial firms.

The marketing option offers specialized training in the nature of marketing institutions and the role of marketing in modern society, and in the nature and application of managerial techniques to solution of problems in marketing management. This option prepares students for careers in retail and wholesale merchandising and in the management of marketing operations of industrial firms.

The secretarial-administration option provides training in breadth in business administration plus training in secretarial skills. Thus the graduate is not only trained in business procedures, problems, and managerial techniques, but is also capable of performing or supervising the clerical and secretarial operations in offices.

The Division of Business is currently housed in the Herty Building which was completed in 1960. In view of the rapid growth of the College and of the Division, however, these are temporary quarters. Part of a new building, recently approved by the Board of Regents and currently in the architectural-planning stage, will be assigned to the Division of Business when it is completed during the next two years.

In a recent announcement of plans for future development, the Administration of the College expressed the intention to request authority to grant the degree of B.B.A with majors in the various specialties in which options are now offered. As these and other changes are made, the program will be developed toward obtaining accreditation by the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business at the earliest possible date.

HISTORY OF BETA ALPHA SIGMA

HISTORY OF BETA ALPHA SIGMA

The formation of Beta Alpha Sigma began in November of 1962 when a group of students decided to take positive steps toward founding a local chapter of a national business administration fraternity on the campus at Georgia Southern College. In late November members of this group discussed their intentions with Dr. Paul LaGrone, Chairman of the Department of Business. Dr. LaGrone heartily endorsed their intentions, but urged that they make a careful study of the fraternities with whom they might become affiliated in order to select the one which would most effectively serve the needs at Georgia Southern. With this objective in mind, the group began collecting preliminary information to be assembled for consideration after the beginning of the new quarter on January 2, 1963.

Early in January, after information regarding national fraternities had been collected from faculty members and other readily available sources, requests for information were made to the central offices of the national fraternities. An Ad Hoc committee was then appointed to study the material available and make recommendations to the group.

In order to provide an organizational framework within which the group could operate, the first formal meeting was held on January 21, 1963. Beta Alpha Sigma was formed and its name, signifying Business Administration Southern, was selected at this meeting. A letter was immediately submitted to the Dean of Students to register the formation of the club.

At subsequent meetings, officers were elected, the unanimous decision was made to attempt to affiliate with the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi, and a constitution and bylaws were adopted. This activity culminated, on February 26, in passage of the motion to petition Delta Sigma Pi for a chapter charter.

Following this action, Alpha Beta Sigma began a vigorous program to put its purposes into effect: These purposes are as follows:

- (1) To strive for and obtain a chapter of the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi on the Georgia Southern Campus.
- (2) To bring in leaders in business to speak to the students in order that the students may widen their knowledge of business operation and management.
- (3) To promote friendship and fellowship among the members of the fraternity through mutual understanding and cooperation in all our endeavors.
- (4) To stress scholarship and to encourage higher standards for members.
- (5) To promote the study of business administration at Georgia Southern.
- (6) To develop leadership ability in the members so that they may be able to become leaders in the world of tomorrow.

The nature of the activities undertaken is shown in the "Calendar of Meetings and Activities" which follows.

Dear Sir:

As faculty advisor to Beta Alpha Sigma, I should like to respectfully urge that you grant the charter to enable this organization to become a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

During the past six months, the young men who comprise the membership of Beta Alpha Sigma have impressed me deeply with their sincerity of purpose in this endeavor. While Dr. LaGrone and I had discussed our need for a chapter of a national professional fraternity on this campus more than a year ago, the entire initiative for the action to obtain one has come from these students. When they first approached me regarding the matter in January of this year, I decided to test their worthiness by allowing them to furnish the initiative for action. Frankly, they have surprised me by their determination.

This determination, as nearly as I can appraise it, stems from a strong desire among these young men to obtain as sound and as complete a professional education for business leadership as they can obtain. They sincerely believe, and did believe before they knew of the existence of Delta Sigma Pi, that in order to accomplish these objectives, they must take an active role in implementing the kinds of things so aptly expressed in the purposes of Delta Sigma Pi.

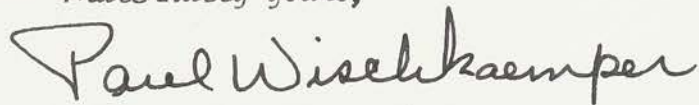

The study of business administration is new at Georgia Southern. Despite the fact that the program has developed rapidly, these students are impatient to have a fully recognized program with close ties to the business community in this region. They have demonstrated that they are willing to do their part toward the prompt accomplishment of this goal.

As they seek affiliation with the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi it is reasonable to ask what these men can contribute to the Fraternity. In response to this question, I should say that their professional attitude toward business administration, their common purpose with the expressed purposes of Delta Sigma Pi, and the determination which they have displayed in pursuing their goal of affiliation suggest that they offer the material from which strong chapters are made.

The benefits that these young men can derive from Delta Sigma Pi, on the other hand, are great, indeed. Through pursuing a chapter program, and through association with other chapters, their horizons will be broadened regarding their chosen fields of endeavor. This is of great value in the current situation because many of these men come from non-business backgrounds and because this college does not have a long tradition of study of business. Furthermore, since this college does not have social fraternities, Delta Sigma Pi will offer them a vehicle through which they can focus more of their social associations around their professional interests.

Due to my past association with Delta Sigma Pi, I was most pleased when these men, entirely of their own volition, selected Delta Sigma Pi as the fraternity with which to strive for affiliation. Your favorable action upon their petition would be another source of great personal gratification to me.

Fraternally yours,

Paul Wischkaemper, Ph.D.
Professor of Marketing

Gentlemen:

As a former member of the Alpha Zeta Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi and as a member of the faculty of Georgia Southern College, it is a pleasure to support the proposal of students on our campus for admission as a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

The business administration program here represents one of the largest enrollments on the campus and is currently in a position to give emphasis to such a fraternal organization.

The formation of an organization such as Delta Sigma Pi would be an asset to the college and afford the business administration majors an opportunity for leadership and service.

Respectfully yours,

James H. Jackson
Assistant Professor
Business Administration
