FORMAL PETITION
TO
INTERNATIONAL FRATERNITY OF DELTA SIGMA PI
FROM DELTA SIGMA
SCHOOL OF COMMERCE AND FINANCE
INDIANA UNIVERSITY

We, the undersigned, members of Delta Sigma Fraternity and students in the School of Commerce and Finance of Indiana University, do hereby petition the chapters and officers of the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi to be granted a charter for the establishment of a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

We firmly believe that we may become more useful to each other, to our University, to our State, and to our fellow men were we permitted to become associated with an international organization that embodies the ideals of Scholarship, Ability, and Leadership. Convinced of the value of such association, we would pledge to such an organization our fullest measure of loyalty and obedience to all the rules, laws, and regulations of the organization, believing that in co-operation and service there is strength.

It is our deliberate judgment that
Delta Sigma Pi does stand for these principles, and it is with this conviction that we submit this,
our petition.

HISTORY OF INDIANA UNIVERSITY

Indiana University is one of the oldest Middle-Western State Universities. By acts of the General Assembly of Indiana and by the state constitution, it is the State University of Indiana and the head of the public school system of the state. Upon establishment, January 20, 1820, the school was called the State Seminary; this name was changed to State College in 1828 and in 1838 it was changed to Indiana University. The first building was erected in 1836 on the old campus which is not included in the present campus. The first school to be established was the School of Law. The University is supported by state funds.

The University is comprised of the following divisions: The School of Arts and Sciences; the Graduate School; the School of Education; the School of Law; the School of Medicine (including the Training School for Nurses, the Robert W. Long Hospital, the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital for Children, and the Dental School, all at Indianapolis); the School of Commerce and Finance; The School of Music; The Extension Division; and the Summer Session.

Cognate schools connected with the public school system are: Purdue University, established at Lafayette in 1869, which is the State

School of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, the State Normal School at Terre Haute, established in 1865 for the training of teachers, and its Eastern Division at Muncie, established in 1918.

The University is situated at Bloomington, the county seat of Monroe County. The city is reached by the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway (Monon Route), by the Illinois Central Railway, and by several motor lines. The town is fifty-six miles southwest of Indianapolis, and one hundred miles northwest of Louisville. The last census, June 30, 1925, gave the population as 12,800; since that date the city limits have been extended. It is a thriving and prosperous inland town--ideal for the location of a University.

The Campus at Bloomington contains about one hundred thirty acres of naturally wooded land and has the reputation of being one of the most beautiful campuses in the country. Other grounds are: a farm of one hundred eighty-four acres on the Ohio River for biological study; a Biological Station and grounds at Winona Lake; about twenty-five acres in Indianapolis on which are the Medical School Buildings, the Robert W. Long Hospital, the James W. Riley Hospital, and the buildings occupied by the Dental College.

The buildings on the Bloomington Campus are: Library, Law, Chemistry, Physiology, Liberal Arts, Journalism, Commerce, Science, Biology, Music, Student Building, Assembly Hall, Central Power-House, Gymnasium, South Hall (Men's Dormitory providing for one hundred men), Memorial Hall (Women's Dormitory holding two hundred twenty women), and the Stadium. Besides these, the University has an independent water supply system which furnishes water for all University buildings. The buildings range in date of construction from 1884 to 1925. The most recent buildings are: South Hall, Memorial Hall, and the Stadium, all constructed within the last year. The Stadium, Memorial Hall and the Union Building (yet to be built) are being paid for by the Memorial Fund, a commemoration of World War heroes subscribed to by students and alumni of the University. A new addition to the Library is now under construction which will practically double its capacity.

The faculty of the University numbers approximately 250. The enrollment during the winter session is about 3600. The following table shows a substantial and satisfactory growth in the total enrollment of the University including the Extension

Division and The Summer Session:

1900.....	1137
1910.....	2431
1915.....	2669
1920.....	3914
1921.....	4256
1922.....	4837
1923.....	5106
1924.....	5067

Indiana University is known as the "Mother of College Presidents" and has a total of thirty-one American College Presidents to her credit. Some of the most prominent are: Lotus Delta Coffman, of Minnesota University; Frank Aydelotte, of Swarthmore; Elmer Burritt Bryan, of Ohio University; Ernest O. Holland, of Washington State; Ernest Hiram Lindley, Chancellor of University of Kansas; Walter A. Jessup, of Iowa University; our own President, Dr. William Lowe Bryan, is a graduate of Indiana. Two other men who are prominent in scientific fields; John M. Coulter, Professor of Botany at Chicago University, and David Starr Jordan, have degrees from, and both were former presidents of, Indiana University.

HISTORY OF THE

SCHOOL OF COMMERCE AND FINANCE

OLD HOSPITAL BUILDING
MAY 1895

THE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE AND FINANCE

In 1902 a two-years' commercial course was established at Indiana University in the Department of Economics. In June 1919, the Board of Trustees authorized a course in Commerce covering four years. The rapid expansion of business in recent years has placed on the universities the duty of giving systematic preparation for a business career. The call for business instruction at Indiana University became pressing both from students and from the public. It was, therefore, decided that the University should provide instruction on a scale that would meet the needs of the situation, so that students should no longer be compelled to go outside the state to secure a business course. In pursuance of this plan the Board of Trustees, in March 1920, established a separate School of Commerce and Finance. Dr. William A. Rawles, a keen and able man of long teaching experience and intimate contact with business men, was appointed Dean of the School.

In June 1921, the Board of Trustees authorized the erection of a building for the school. This Building--Commerce Hall--was dedicated on April 25 and 26, 1923. It is three stories high and is 195 feet long and 64 feet wide. It contains thirty-two recitation rooms, several offices, and an auditorium with a seating capacity of 300 persons. The architecture is modified Gothic. It is constructed of dressedoolitic limestone in broken ashlar style.

The School of Commerce and Finance is a member of the National Association of Collegiate Schools of Business. Dean Rawles was elected Secretary-Treasurer of the Association in May 1924 and re-elected in 1925.

The requirements for admission to the School are:

- 1) The student must present credentials which satisfy the requirements for admission to the College of Arts and Sciences of Indiana University.

- 2) The student must have completed two full years in the College of Arts and Sciences of Indiana University or in some other school of equal rank. Such a course should include a thorough study of the principles of economics and accounting. The entire course comprises four years of work, two in the College of Arts and Sciences and two in the School of Commerce and Finance.

The curriculum provides for the following four-year courses:

- General Business
- Accounting
- Banking and Finance
- Foreign Trade
- Insurance
- General Secretarial Training
- Employment Management and Welfare Work
- Secretaries of Commercial Organizations
- Commercial Teachers in High Schools

The degree of Bachelor of Science in Commerce and Finance is conferred upon completion of any of the prescribed four-year courses.

The degree of Master of Science in Commerce and Finance is conferred upon any student who holds the degree of Bachelor of Science in Commerce and Finance and who successfully completes one year of work arranged by the faculty of the School of Commerce and Finance.

In addition to the above, there is a Commerce-Law course covering a period of six years, which leads to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Commerce and Finance at the end of the fourth year, and to the degree of Bachelor of Laws at the end of the sixth year.

In line with the progressive policy of the Commerce School, a Bureau of Business Research, catering to graduate students, had been established this year under the direction of Professor Lionel D. Edie. Although the Bureau co-operates with the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce, it is under the jurisdiction of the School of Commerce and Finance.

A commercial periodical, relating especially to Indiana business and intended for state-wide circulation, is to be published this year for the first time by the students of the Commerce School.

A Placement Bureau is also maintained by the School of Commerce and Finance, which makes every reasonable effort to secure positions for those who have made creditable records in the School.

The faculty of the School numbers twelve members. In addition, there are approximately seventy-five members of other departments and schools of the University who give a great deal of their time to teaching courses required of pre-commerce and commerce students.

The enrollment of Juniors and Seniors has increased from 86 in 1920-1921 to approximately 200 in 1925-1926. Of this number, about 175 are men. Including the pre-commerce Freshmen and Sophomores, the present enrollment is about 700. This is more than one-fifth the total winter enrollment at Indiana University. Thirteen students graduated the first year and there will be about 95 graduates in the class of 1926.

The prospects for the future growth of the school are very encouraging.

HISTORY OF DELTA SIGMA

It was during the recently passed summer vacation that negotiations were opened for the establishment of a national professional fraternity in the School of Commerce. During the summer, Mr. Wright, Secretary-Treasurer of Delta Sigma Pi, and Mr. Homer Eberhart, President of the Commerce Club corresponded and discussed the plausibility of establishing a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi here.

The initial move was into fertile and, heretofore, untrodden soil. When Mr. Eberhart returned to school in September, 1925, he gathered about him the most outstanding men in the school and put the proposition to them. They were highly in favor of such an organization for the following reasons:

- 1) No professional commerce fraternity was established at Indiana University and, since all other professional schools in the University have their secret organizations, it was thought that there should be one in the Commerce School especially since it and its field--Business-- is recognised to be as much a profession as is Law or Medicine.

- 2) The Commerce Club, the only organization for men in the school, was thought to be too all-inclusive--it usually started in the fall by having every Junior and Senior present at meetings but by spring, this number dwindled to a very few most-interested members. On account of this, the members of Delta Sigma decided it would be better to have these most-interested men in an organization in which their concerns could be best filled and satisfied.

The organization of Delta Sigma was effected solely through the active participation and interest of all its members. It was done entirely on the initiative of the men; there was no assistance received from members of the faculty or from the deans.

At a recent meeting of the Fraternity, the following officers were elected:

Head Master	Homer D. Eberhart
Chancellor	Charles F. Benzel
Scribe	Joseph C. Sweeten
Treasurer	Robert F. Allen
Senior Warden	Leo W. Shumaker

Delta Sigma men are open-minded, progressive, and scholarly--they represent the best in the School of Commerce and Finance of Indiana University.

BETA GAMMA SIGMA. A chapter of the national honorary commerce fraternity was established at Indiana University in 1923. Membership is restricted to not more than one-tenth of the Senior class and one-fifteenth of the Junior class. Last year the local chapter purchased a bronze scholarship plaque. Each year the name of the Junior male student having the highest average for his pre-commerce work is placed upon this plaque.

COMMERCE CLUB. The Commerce Club, composed of the male students and members of the Faculty in the School of Commerce and Finance, has been organized for the purpose of encouraging good fellowship and the discussion of economic and business subjects and for the stimulation of loyalty toward the school. Every two weeks prominent business men are invited to speak before the Club. A room in the new building is assigned for its use.

GIRLS COMMERCE CLUB. This club is composed of all the women students in the school. This organization has been formed to advance the commercial and educational interests of University women, to establish a closer relationship among the women in the school, and to study the opportunities for women in the business world.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Indiana University
Bloomington, Indiana
October 28, 1925

To the Board of Directors of Delta Sigma Pi:

I have carefully looked over the list of the applicants for admission to Delta Sigma Pi. It is a list of the representative men in the School of Commerce and Finance. Many of these men I know personally. I may say, without reservations, that they do credit to their School, and that I am confident that they will do credit to Delta Sigma Pi.

I shall welcome the installation of the chapter here. It will contribute, no doubt, to the intimate interchange of thought and sentiment in the field where it functions. In my judgment, such close fellowship among workers in a common field is the best means of true education.

WILLIAM A. RAWLES, DEAN

October 26, 1925.

TO THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF
DELTA SIGMA PI

I take pleasure in approving the application of a group of our students for a charter of your fraternity authorizing a chapter at this institution.

I have examined the list of applicants and I can say that without exception they are very worthy young men and that they are the outstanding men in the School of Commerce and Finance. Moreover, some of them are prominent leaders in the University as a whole.

I give this application my approval in the hope that the establishment of a chapter of this fraternity here will unify the members, help to maintain high standards, and deepen the seriousness of purpose among our students.

Very respectfully yours,
