PETITION TO DELTA SIGMA PI FRATERNITY

DELTA IOTA FRATERNITY
1950

CREDO

The University of Detroit refuses to subscribe to the doctrine that "academic freedom" may be used as a pretext to teach systems which destory all freedom. It proudly boasts that by its very nature as a Catholic institution it has always taught and always will teach the principles on which rest all law, order and right government. In view of the contemporary struggle mentioned above, a restatement of the principles contained in the CREDO of this University is appropriate:

It believes in God

It believes in the personal dignity of man

It believes that man has certain natural rights which come from God and not from the State

It therefore is opposed to all forms of dictatorship holding the philosophy that the "total man" (totalitarianism) belongs to the State

It believes in the sanctity of the home -- the basic unit of civilization

It believes in the natural right of private property, but likewise that private property has its social obligations

It believes that labor has not only rights but obligations

- It believes that capital has not only rights but obligations
- It is vigorously opposed to all forms of "racism"--persecution or intolerance because of race
- It believes that liberty is a sacred thing, but that law, which regulates liberty, is a sacred obligation
- It believes in inculcating all the essential liberties of American Democracy and takes open and frank issue with all brands of spurious "democracy"

It believes, briefly, in the teachings of Christ, Who held that morality must regulate the personal, family, economic, political and international life of men if civilization is to endure.

DEDICATION

DEAN O'REGAN

IN APPRECIATION

To William Barden O'Regan, Assistant Dean of the Evening College of Commerce and Finance, University of Detroit, we, the members of Delta Iota Fraternity dedicate this petition for recognition as an official chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

We cannot forget Dean O'Regan's quiet encouragement and his infinite patience with our first clumsy efforts to develop our infant fraternity. Through our association with him we discovered those fine qualities of understanding and sympathy which have endeared him to legions of Univeristy of Detroit graduates.

To you, Dean O'Regan, we express our sincere gratitude for your assistance in the organization of Delta Iota and for your continued efforts in our behalf.

HISTORY OF

The History of Delta Sota

Delta Iota Fraternity, was founded in April, 1949 by five undergraduates with the help and guidance of Dean William B. O'Regan. It was felt by the five undergraduates that the men going to night school should have a good professional fraternity, Dean O'Regan was in agreement and suggested we investigate the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi to see if we could eventually qualify for a chapter. An informal meeting was soon arranged by Dean O'Regan; the five undergratudates met with Mr. H. G. Wright, Grand Secretary-Treasurer of Delta Sigma Pi, Mr. J. Elwood Armstrong, Mr. Rudolph Schmidt, Mr. John Collins, members of Delta Sigma Pi Alumni, and Mr. Paul Pickner and Mr. Fred Thomas, members of Theta Chapter, University of Detroit. At this meeting the five undergraduates learned what they would have to do to organize a fraternity and what steps would be necessary to obtain a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi. These steps were:

- Obtain permission from school suthorities to organize a fraternity.
- Set up an organization and hold business and professional meetings.
- 3. Obtain permission from Theta Chapter to become the night school chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.
- 4. Petition Delta Sigma Pi for a chapter.

After completing the necessary arrangements, our first meeting was held on May 24, 1949, Dean O'Regan explained that we had received permission from the school authorities to organize a new fraternity. Mr. George Rakovan, University of Detroit night school instructor and a member of Delta Sigma Pi, gave a talk on the merits of a good fraternity and gave us several suggestions on how to have a good and successful fraternity.

On May 31, 1949 we held our second meeting and the name Delta Iota was approved.

Organization continued through the summer, and several meetings were held and on August 28, 1949 the fraternity held a picnic at Island Lake; of course, it rained, but a good time was had by all.

On September 14, 1949 we held our fourth meeting and Mr.

Robert F. Brang, University of Detroit night school instructor, gave a brief talk on parlimentary law. After Mr. Brang's talk the chairman of the Constitution and By-Laws Committee read the Constitution and it was accepted by a unanimous vote of all members.

On November 18, 1949 we held our first Professional Meeting at the Hotel Fort Wayne, Cass Room. Our first speaker was Dean William B. O'Regan, Dean of the College of Commerce and Finance, Evening Division University of Detroit. Dean O'Regan gave a very interesting talk on the Business of Advertising and the Business of Life.

On February 24, 1950 we held our second Professional Meeting at the Detroit Leland Hotel. Our speaker was Mr. E. C. Harris, now First Vice President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. Mr. Harris gave a very interesting talk about the Central Banking system and how it affects the individual.

Was received

On February 9, 1950 we received official notice that Theta Chapter had given its permission for another chapter of Delta Sigma Pi at the University of Detroit,

On March 27, 1950 we commenced step number four, our petition to Delta Sigma Pi for a chapter.

We sincerely hope we have completed all the requirements which are necessary to become a Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

Because Louis XIII of France set the fashion in wearing hats of beaver skins, Detroit was founded.

The first trading post of the French was at Mackinac. The Indians came from as far away as five hundred miles to trade the beaver pelts for brandy. When the popularity of the beaver hat reached England, the English fur traders who were up at Fort Orange, now Albany, moved down into the land of the beaver on the lower lakes. They offered the Indians fire water made from molasses rum which afforded better bargaining being as it was cheaper than the French brandy.

After the decline in trade, the French Commandant of Fort Mackinac was called to Montreal and began an expedition which was authorized to find a settlement on the Detroit River and build a garrisoned fort as a barrier against the invasion of the English traders from Fort Orange. D'Etrait (of the Strait) was known to them as the home of the beaver.

In July 1701, they stepped ashore and the party made camp in the woods on a bluff overlooking the Detroit River. Here Cadillac and his men erected Fort Pontchartrain. One of the first buildings to be erected was the Church of Ste. Anne, which still endures after twice being destroyed by fire.

Detroit, for the first 59 years of its existence, was a small frontier settlement of New France. During the next 23 years it was a part of the British Empire. Then came 13 years of American possession which was purely nominal because Great Britain still ruled it. For a short time, Detroit and Michigan were politically a part of Canada sending representatives to the first and second Canadian Assembly under the Quebec Act.

Then came the American conquest of the West and surrender of Detroit to the United States in 1796. A disgraceful surrender allowed Great Britain possession for 14 months prior to September 1813, when it was recaptured.

After the war of 1812 and following the proclamation of peace in 1815, Detroit was incorporated and given a municipal government.

Laws were passed and a series of fines set up for the violation of these laws. Stringent fire regulations were adopted. Gambling and games of chance were prohibited. Licenses were issued to taverns and alehouses, allowing them to sell intoxicating beverages. The population at this time in the city was 850 people.

In 1816 a public market place was established in the middle of Woodward Avenue just below Jefferson Avenue. A weighmaster was appointed to see that weights were correct. The whipping post was established in the market building in 1818 and abolished in 1830.

From the founding of Detroit in 1701 until 1818, Ste. Anne's Church had been the center of religious promotion in Detroit.

Subsequently, there followed the Methodist Society in 1821, Episcopalians in 1825 and the Baptists in 1827.

The year 1817 was the beginning of a period of general awakening in Detroit in which people of all nationalities and religious creeds worked together in perfect harmony for the promotion of general culture, education and religion. As a result came the establishment of the first Michigan newspaper, the first university and the beginning of our public libraries.

At this time, Detroit had among its citizens a number of learned men who saw the urgent need of educational facilities for the people. Foremost in both learning and educational activity were Rev. Gabriel Richard, Rev. John Montieth and Judge Augustus B. Woodward.

On August 26, 1817 the first educational movement in Detroit came to a head in the passing of an act by the Governor and Judges for the founding of a university. The act provided for a university, not a college, and also provided for 13 professorships, in spite of the lack of funds or professors. This shortage caused seven of the professorships to be conferred upon the Rev. John Montieth, a Presbyterian missionary, along with the presidency of the University. The remaining six professorships were bestowed upon Fr. Gabriel Richard, together with the vice presidency.

From 1817 until 1880 Detroit continued in its mental awakening and forward progress. It founded another newspaper, a printing press was brought in by Fr. Richard. The hull for the first steamboat was launched in May 1818. Treaties were signed with the Michigan Indians designating certain lands as their territories. In 1823 the people of Detroit, disgusted with the rule of the territory under the planning of the governor and judges, petitioned Congress, and an act was passed transferring government to the Governor and Legislative Council. The first capitol for the State of Michigan was set up in Detroit in 1823. By the year 1832, Detroit had 4,000 inhabitants. Its progress was growing by leaps and bounds. In the latter part of the 1870's, two notable inventions were adopted for general use and the use of telephone communication and electric lights was ussered into the city.

Industry kept pace with the educational improvement and advancement in Detroit. While some of the earlier industries of the City, like the saw mills, the iron furnaces and the copper smelting works, faded away, others took their place. In 1864 a number of men organized the Michigan Car Company and a large plant was built. A second car company, the Peninsular Car Company, was formed in 1885. A number of subsidiary concerns were gathered into association and the two car companies were merged in 1892. In 1899 this plant became merged into the American Car & Foundry company.

Large numbers of men were being employed in the different companies and industries that sprang up. A seed company; a pharmaceutical company; varnish works; several paint, oil and color works; the stove industry caused a steady development and attracted the population to Detroit.

This was Detroit before the advent of the automobile. The growth afterward was by leaps and bounds. Many diversified associated industries developed from this growth to arrive at Detroit of today.

The modern history of Detroit since 1900 is well known throughout the world. During the war it was respected as the "Arsenal of Democracy" and at present and in the future will continually do its best to maintain peace.

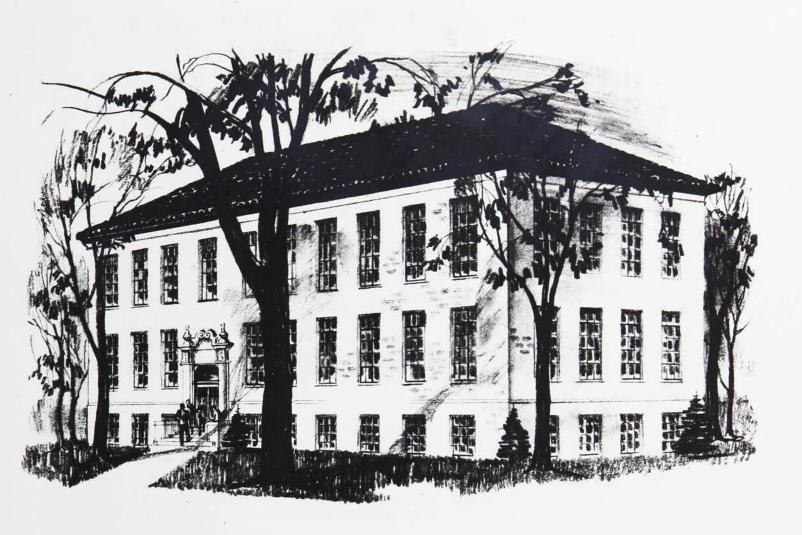

PROPOSED SCHOOL IMPROVEMENTS

---TO MEET THIS CHALLENGE ---

The University of Detroit welcomes the challenge of the citizens of tomorrow.

The University shall continue to undertake the task of meeting obligations with a conviction that it will have the cooperation, not only of its sons, daughters and friends, but of the community as a whole.

This conviction is evidenced with the following proposed school improvements.

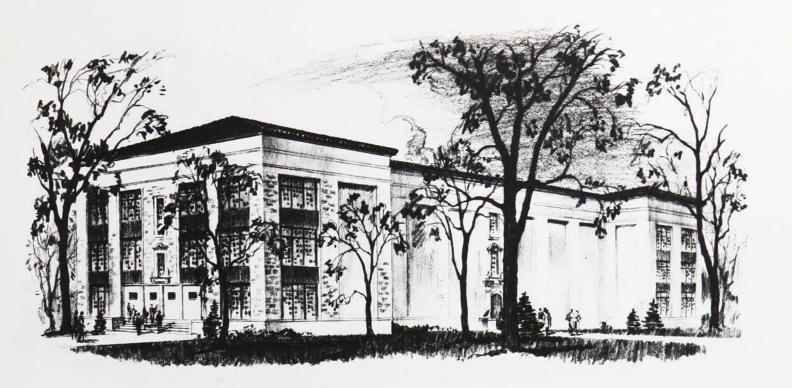

General administrative and business offices of the University now occupy space in classroom buildings. While necessity dictates such an arrangement, it is impractical to be using improvised offices when the space is needed desperately for students who desire the type of education offered at the University of Detroit.

The Treasurer, Bursar, Student Counsel Bureau, Veterans Affairs, Coordination and Placement Office, Registrar and Admissions Office -- all will gain in operating efficiency by having their work centered in one building. Through the release of classroom space now used by these offices, the University will be able to serve hundreds of new students to the full measure of the high purpose which has marked its course since 1877.

A reception hall where alumni, friends, parents, faculty and students may gather is included in the Administration Building plans. Conference and consultation rooms in this building will provide additional meeting places for civic and community leaders, industrialists, merchants and professional men and women. Here, in an atmosphere of free enterprise and freedom, these men and women can meet and work with competent educators and technicians toward the solution of their problems.

The University President and other key officials will have headquarters in the Administration Building. In this setting, knowledge and experience gained through the years can be pooled to guide the Institution. From such guidance, there stems a unity of purpose in all of the Colleges, Schools and Divisions of the University.

Events of recent years and the strenuous character of present-day living emphasize the need for a thorough physical fitness program as an integral part of University training. Lacking field house or gymnasium facilities, the University of Detroit has been unable to provide adequate space for physical education classes and for intramural sports and games. These activities, benefiting thousands of students, will be added as soon as a Field House is available for use.

For more than twenty-five years the University of Detroit basketball team and other varsity squads have played intercollegiate contests in high school gymnasiums located in various sections of the city and suburbs. These teams have been handicapped by the lack of a home practice or playing floor, yet their record is excellent and their competitive spirit is high.

Other important services and facilities to be located in a Field House are the student health center and physician's office, classrooms for physical education, offices for the coaches and counsellors, training room, handball courts, equipment rooms, lockers and showers.

In addition to the many student and alumni activities centering in a Field House, this proposed campus structure will provide space for civic and commercial and industrial demonstrations and exhibits.

Field House plans occupy a priority position in the University's efforts to meet the challenge of the years ahead.

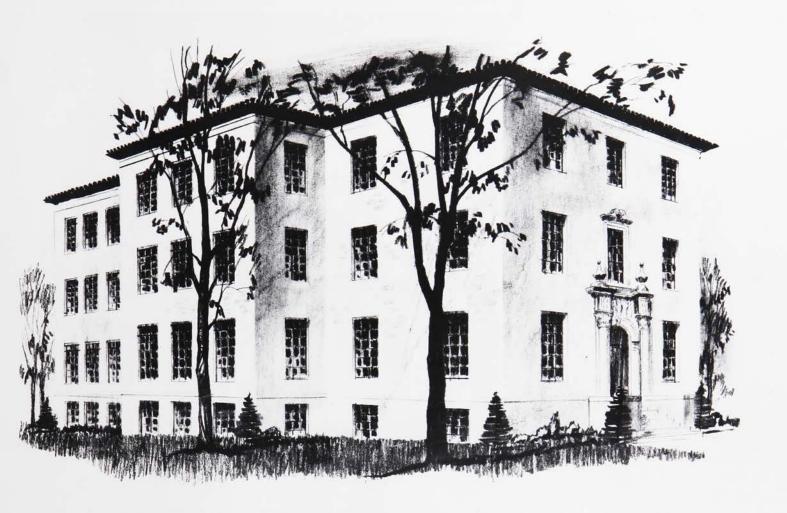

An Activities Center is the between and after-class focal point of student, faculty and community life on the campus. Restful lounges, quiet study space and meeting rooms for professional organizations, honor societies, clubs, fraternities, sororities; veterans and civic groups must be made a part of this structure.

Students, faculty members and University Griends may secure wholesome food in pleasant surroundings in the Center Cafeteria. In addition, this service will make possible on-the-campus luncheon and dinner meetings bringing together civic leaders, businessmen and educators.

Through the years, the University has found it necessary to rent motion picture theatres for convocations, class assemblies and public lectures. An auditorium, planned for the Student Activities Center, will provide ample facilities for such events, as well as debates, panel discussions and visual education programs. Here, too, will be rehearsal and performance space for the Choral Society, the Concert Band and Dramatic Club.

Such a Center must provide overnight accommodations for visiting educators and lecturers, a games and recreation room, a workshop for student publications, a mailing room and a bookstore.

Equal to the Field House in usefulness and importance, this Student Activities Building also takes a position of high priority in the University's program of service.

Holden Hall, the only dormitory on the University campus, houses 182 men students in ideal living quarters. But this is not enough. More than 500 applications are received annually from students who must seek rooms elsewhere because dormitory facilities are so limited.

The housing problem causes many students from the State of Michigan and elsewhere to delay or abandon plans for a University of Detroit education. Student preference for dormitory living quarters and proper supervision by University Deans and Counsellors emphasize the need for more residence halls.

Through answered prayer and with the assistance of friends, this opportunity to be of greater service to out-of-town students requesting admission will be met with expanded campus housing.

Religion is basic to Jesuit education. To be complete, education must be linked with the moral guidance that comes through religion.

The Chapel is the heart of a campus and an inspiration to each student to conduct his daily life in keeping with his convictions. Yet, in a day when morally strong and soundly educated men are the need of a confused world, the present University Chapel must be housed in the basement of a classroom building. Less than one hundred students can be accommodated at one time. All group religious observances and convocations are at present held in the parish church nearby.

As we reflect on this great need, let us "Make no little plans":

HISTORY OF EVENING COLLEGE

O F

COMMERCE AND FINANCE

In the summer of 1877 the Fathers of the Society of Jesus, planned the institution of a college in Detroit. The Society purchased a residence and lot on the south side of Jefferson Avenue between Antoine and Hastings Streets and started the Detroit College with a faculty of five instructors. In September 1877 the institution was incorporated under the state laws as Detroit College with authority to perform all the functions of a college and confer degrees. Continued growth of the college led to successive purchases of adjoining property.

Under its ever broadening basis, the institution was reorganized in 1911 as the University of Detroit. It provides a college of Arts and Sciences, which confers the degrees of A. B. and B. S.; an engineering school; a law school; a school of commerce and finance; a school of journalism and other educational departments.

On January 1, 1922 the faculty announced that 42-1/2 acres of land had been purchased in the northwestern part of the city for the erection of a new series of university buildings with all modern equipment. After the new university was established there, the buildings on Jefferson Avenue would be maintained for night school and university extension courses.

Catholic university in the United States and is one of twenty-four Jesuit operated colleges. The schools and colleges of the University are open to coeds. Non-Catholic students are admitted and are not required to take courses in religion but must take a semester's work in principles of morality.

The University is accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and by the American Council on Education. It is also a member of the Jesuit Educational Association; the National Catholic Education Association; the Association of Urban Universities; the Association of American Colleges; the National Conference of Church Related Colleges; the Michigan Association of North Central Colleges; and the Association of Catholic Colleges of Michigan. Recognition is given by the Board of Regents of the State of New York and by the Department of Public Instruction of the State of Pennsylvania.

The University of Detroit is serving the City, the State and the Nation through its five colleges and schools.

The Evening College of Commerce and Finance commenced in October, 1916. After the beginning of the first World War, a demand for supplementary training along commercial and industrial lines began to show itself. An evolution of industrial methods in the direction of quantity production was indicated. This mass production caused a tremendous increase in the flow of material, requiring a greater degree of accuracy in cost accounting. More varied detail in dealing with questions of capitalization and investment, the application of tax laws on the comparatively new field of taxation of income, let to greater responsibilities for accountants and executives.

Modern business demanded participants to have an acquaintance with subjects formerly handled by specialists. And so it was to provide men and women of Detroit with a training, both academic and commercial, as well as industrial, that the Evening College of Commerce and Finance was formed.

From the beginning the faculty was to be composed of practical business men and specialists in the fields of commerce and industry who could and do impart the benefits of their broad experience to the students.

Stressing basic cultural and religious fundamentals that make for good citizenship, the University offers well-rounded courses in preparing its students to meet readily, conscientiously and with imagination, the responsibilities of family, social, professional, political and religious life.

LETTERS OF RECOMMENDATION

EVENING COLLEGE OF COMMERCE AND FINANCE
DOWLING HALL

May 15 1950

Mr. H.G. Wright

International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi 222 West Adams Street Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mr. Wright:

A group of our Evening Division students are seeking a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi, that would be exclusively for Evening Division students.

They are at present operating under the name Delta Iota and I was the first speaker at their first professional meeting. I have been familiar with their plan from the start and am in favor of the idea.

I have every reason to beleive that if the chapter is granted to them, they will be highly successful.

Fraternally yours.

William B. O'Regan Assistant Dean.

EVENING COLLEGE OF COMMERCE AND FINANCE DOWLING HALL

May 16, 1950

Mr. H.G. Wright, Grand Secretary-Treasurer Delta Sigma Pi 220 W. Adams Street Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. Wright:

This is a testimonial to the conscientious efforts made by a group of our Evening Commerce and Finance students to qualify for acceptance as an evening school chapter of Delta Sigma Pi. During my eleven years' association with this unit of the University of Detroit, I have seen what Delta Sigma Pi has meant to the students,— the encouragement it has given them to develope a professional attitude towards their work, and the many ties of good-fellowship which it has engendered among its members.

This group which organized last May under the name of Delta Iota to carry through the steps necessary for affiliation with Delta Sigma Pi represents an excellent cross-section of our Evening College. Under the leadership of Patrick F. Burns they have completed their organization and presented programs which testify to their sincere interest in this project, as well as to their ability to go on to add luster to the name of Delta Sigma Pi.

Hence, I endorse what they have done and add my recommendation that they be granted a charter in accordance with the rules and practices of your esteemed organization.

Sincerely yours,

Henry J. Wirtenberger, S.J.
