To the Board of Directors:

As you review the following petition for Nu Zeta Tau, you will witness why my admiration for the colony members has reached such a high level. The colony's growth has evolved to a point where they are now prepared to once again become a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

In their quest to become Zeta Tau, the colony has achieved the requirements to become a chapter, as well as surpassing the expectations of a colony. Since its formation, the colony has become a fixture in the Bay Area Region, attending numerous regional events and participating in other chapter's activities. In addition, members of Nu Zeta Tau have attended the Grand Chapter Congress and the Western Provincial Conference.

In reactivating the chapter, we are strengthening the fraternity as a whole by adding to its wealth of brothers. Bring leadership, excellence in scholarship and knowledge of new resources, the colony members will further the fraternity's progress.

I hope that you too will find the activities of the Nu Zeta Tau colony worthy of installation. I would be proud to call any of them brothers.

Thank you for your consideration.

Fraternally,

Lisa Brown

To the Board of Directors:

I am proud to recommend the approval of the petition of the Nu Zeta Tau Colony to reactivate the Zeta Tau Chapter at California State University East Bay. As you review the petition, you will see that the colony has come a long way in the past two quarters and is now ready to take its place as a full-fledged chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

The colony has met all of the requirements to become a chapter. The members are enthusiastic about taking the next step in their evolution by joining the fraternity as individual members of Delta Sigma Pi and the Zeta Tau Chapter. Members of the colony have consistently participated in local, regional and national fraternity events including Grand Chapter Congress in Orlando, Brotherhood Games last Fall, the Bay Area Region's Area Conference in January and ten colony members traveled to Anaheim to attend the Western Provincial Conference last weekend.

The members of the Nu Zeta Tau colony bring new energy and perspective to our fraternity. They have demonstrated their commitment and dedication to the vision and values of our organization during the past year and I know that they will continue to make a difference in the future. I will be very proud to have the opportunity to call each of them Brother.

As a longtime resident of the Western Region, it will be fantastic to bring Delta Sigma Pi back to the CSU East Bay campus! Zeta Tau Chapter went inactive before I was initiated and it will be great to have them back as a part of our fraternal family.

I trust that you will agree that the Nu Zeta Tau colony is ready to become our newest reactivated chapter and I ask you to vote in favor of approving their petition.

Thank you for your support!

Dear Board of Directors:

Re: Nu Zeta Tau Colony

I have been working with the Nu Zeta Tau colony at California State University East Bay campus since September 2005 as their Co-District Director. Over the course of my time with the colony, I have seen the colony transform from a small group of five members to a group of thirty. Throughout this time, the members have taken up various leadership roles to ensure the growth and progress of the colony. The colony has shown a strong determination to meet the requirements to become a chapter.

Over the past year, many of the colony members have taken up various roles within the colony to demonstrate their leadership skills. The President and Senior Vice President of the colony have done an outstanding job in motivating colony members to increase recruiting to meet their requirements. The members have been working well with each other and have already begun to develop the bonds of brotherhood among each other. When representing the fraternity with other organizations both on and off campus they have maintained a high level of professionalism.

The colony has had excellent attendance to fraternity events and conferences including the Bay Area Region Area Conference in January 2006 and Western Provincial LEAD School in February 2006. The high number of attendees at these events has exposed the colony to the benefits of Delta Sigma Pi as well as the true brotherhood that we have.

I highly recommend the Nu Zeta Tau Colony for becoming a chapter of our fraternity. They have met all necessary requirements set forth for receiving a charter and they deserve the opportunity.

Fraternally,

Brother Sanjay Trivedi

To the Board of Directors:

I am happy to recommend the approval of the petition of the Nu Zeta Tau Colony to reactivate the Zeta Tau Chapter at California State University East Bay.

I have had the opportunity to work with the members of the colony during the past year and have enjoyed getting to know them as they sponsored several events with the Career Development Center. The members of the colony are enthusiastic about the opportunity to bring Delta Sigma Pi back to the CSUEB campus and they have worked diligently to meet the requirements set forth by the fraternity.

Having Delta Sigma Pi back at CSU East Bay would be a welcome addition to our campus and would provide students with practical organizational experience to enhance the programs offered by The College of Business and Economics.

Thank you for your consideration.

History of CSU East Bay

California State University, East Bay (CSUEB) was founded in 1957 as the State College for Alameda County, but for the past thirty years, it has been defined and shaped by its membership in the California State University System (CSU). In accord with the framework of the California Master Plan for Higher Education, CSUEB's primary purpose is to serve the needs of the diverse and growing population of Alameda and Contra Costa Counties for affordable, high-quality baccalaureate, credential, and masters-level degree programs.

CSUEB enrolls nearly 14,000 students (FTE: approx. 11,000). Reflecting Bay Area demographic trends of the last twenty years, the student body comprises a majority of minorities. CSUEB has always served high percentages of upper-division transfer and returning "new majority" students (part-time, older, working), including a large number of "first generation" college students.

Most of the earliest graduates of the State College of Alameda were interested in teaching careers. Consistent with the mission of the CSU, undergraduate liberal studies as preparation for teaching has remained a principal focus of academic study at CSUEB. Reflecting national, economic, and occupational trends -- perhaps even intensified by the university's proximity to Silicon Valley -- business and computer science have, since the early 80s, joined liberal studies as the most popular academic pursuits of CSUEB students.

Other important institutional background characteristics of CSUEB include its academic calendar and academic administration divisions. CSUEB is one of a handful of CSU campuses choosing to remain on the quarter system. With few exceptions, the academic programs of the university are administered by Deans and Department Chairs of four Colleges: Arts, Letters, and Social Sciences; Business and Economics; Education and Allied Studies; and Science. Decentralized administration, typical of university-level education nationally, is a feature of CSUEB highly valued by many of its most senior and influential citizens.

Student services at CSUEB receive generally high marks on student satisfaction surveys. Even so, beginning in 2001, the university redoubled its commitment to excellence in student services with a 9-point "Students First!" campaign. Its goal was to further minimize bureaucratic obstacles students might encounter in pursuit of learning and to improve services in ways that enrich students' experience and contribute to recruitment and retention efforts.

In 2002, the university opened the CSUEB Oakland Professional Development and Conference Center in downtown Oakland. The university is also raising funds for a new Business and Technology Building, which will be the first new classroom building on the Hayward campus in over 30 years.

Future home of the College of Business

California State University, East Bay

Strengths

CSUEB has attractive physical campuses in Hayward and Concord, but its main strength is its people. Students, staff, and faculty feel great pride in the university. Students are deservedly proud of their academic achievements in the face of work, family, and personal responsibilities that compete with school for time, energy, and financial resources. Staff are extremely proud of their roles in managing the business of the university, in helping students and faculty with the many tasks that necessarily accompany teaching and learning, and in creating and maintaining a supportive physical and social environment for learning. Faculty are very committed to teaching, research, and connecting with students, and proud of their role in helping students succeed.

The university has demonstrated an ability to innovate in response to student needs and market opportunities, and to create productive partnerships with external communities. CSUEB is truly a year-round campus and does a better job than any other CSU campus in attracting students to attend in summer. The campus has invested in information technology to support instruction. CSUEB is one of only a few universities to make all of its courses available on a Web-based course management system (Blackboard). This one decision alone has done more than anything else to facilitate innovation in assessment practices. It has also set the stage for new initiatives in community-building and for a broader engagement of the university community in university-wide information-gathering processes concerning academic standards, ADA awareness and compliance, and health services delivery.

Challenges

Like all other public universities in California, CSUEB is bracing for a period of budget cuts related to the economy, while the state is experiencing increasing demands for higher education. Due to such factors as its age and administrative history, as well as previous cycles of economic and demographic boom and bust, the university is entering a period of major transitions. Many senior faculty, administrators, and staff are at or near retirement age. Although demand for higher education is increasing in absolute numbers, competition for all types of students, and especially better-prepared and self-motivated students, is increasing. The number of the tenure track faculty has shrunk, which means more part-time faculty are teaching more course sections. Most faculty see the reduction in tenure track faculty as hurting student advising, participation in university governance, and departmental business—including assessment of student learning outcomes. These conditions have engendered faculty attitudes that range from anger through frustration to despair.

The branch campus in Concord is viewed as a key resource to reach students in our extensive two-county service area. However, most feel that the university has not yet effectively incorporated the Concord campus into its operations and academic planning. Taking full advantage of the Concord campus and building its unique community is an emerging effort.

History of the Nu Zeta Tau Chapter

In the very beginning, Edna Lee, an initiate of the Theta Chi chapter came to California State University, East Bay and suggested that we start a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi. Approval was received from the new Dean of the business school to bring Delta Sigma Pi back to the CSU East Bay campus.

On February 16, 2004, the Nu Zeta Tau Colony of Delta Sigma Pi was officially established. In the beginning, we started with only a few members. The first District Director appointed by then Western Regional VP Amanda Smith was Mark Panelo.

The group had elections and began conducting events but development of the colony was slow initially. Activities began to accelerate in the Spring of 2005. Two representatives, including President Rohini Duvvuri, attended Grand Chapter Congress in Orlando and returned energized and enthused. After GCC, two new District Directors, Sanjay Trivedi and Claire Roberts, were appointed by newly elected Bay Area RVP Lisa Brown. In the Fall 2005, we had Rohini Duvvuri and Jimmy Yip as our President and Senior Vice President.

A strong recruiting effort in the Fall 2005 helped the colony grow from 3-5 active members to more than 15 active members. Activities included a winery tour, a Mock Interview seminar, a stress management workshop, and regular business meetings.

In November 2005, the colony created the inaugural executive committee. The executive committee became the following: Jimmy Yip, President; Manna Obad, Senior Vice President; Rohini Duvvuri, Vice President for Professional Activities; Angella Le, Vice President for Colony Operations; Sally Chen, Vice President of Finance; Sonny La, Vice President of Community Service; Ricky Wu, Chancellor; Ignacio Leon, Events Coordinator and Garrett Lew, Historian.

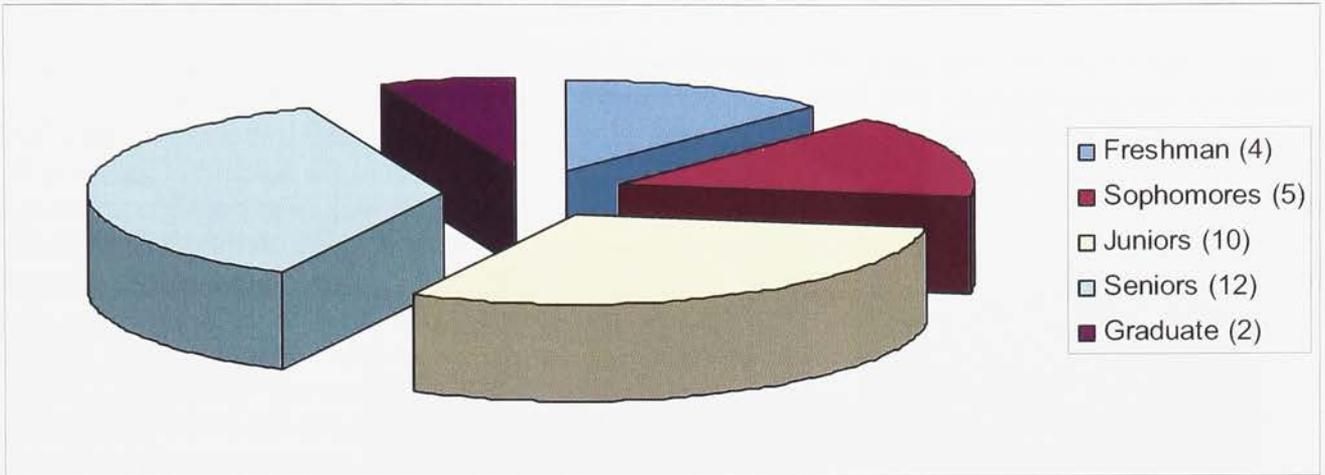

As the winter quarter began in January 2006, the colony again did fundraising at the local bookstore, Books on the Run. We were able to raise enough for the charter fee. The colony conducted a very effective recruiting period which included two Meet the Colony events, a pizza night, a game night, a professional tour to the Jelly Belly factory, a community service event and an informal get-acquainted event to watch the Rose Bowl. We co-hosted two career-building professional events in conjunction with the Career Development Center during the winter quarter entitled Ethics and Perfect Schmoozing.

To learn more about Delta Sigma Pi and to get acquainted with other chapters and to make themselves known, colony members attended the Area Conference at UC Berkeley to meet more fraternity brothers in the San Francisco Bay Area Region. In addition, 12 members traveled down to the recent Western Provincial Conference in Anaheim to further network with members of the Western Province.

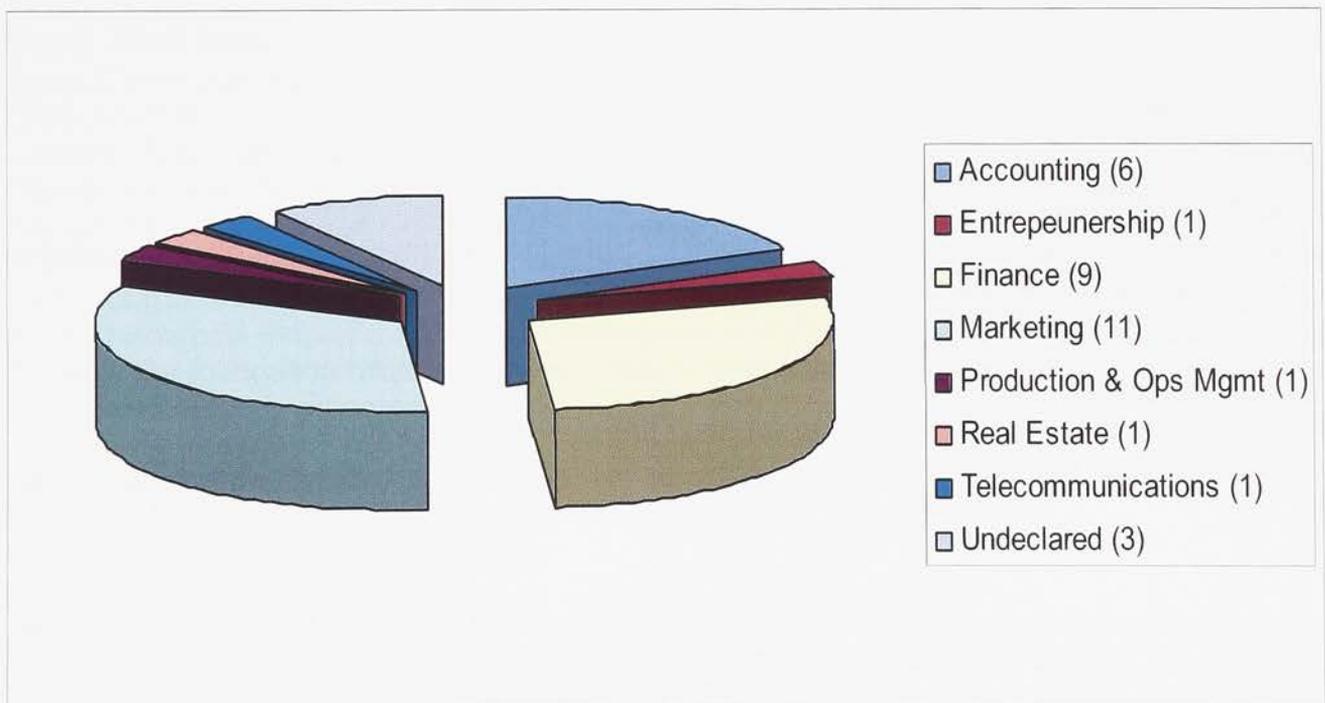

The preparation of this petition brings the Winter quarter to a close with only finals and the upcoming Chapter Consultant visit on March 17th to go. We look forward to the Spring quarter and hope to spend that time continuing to raise money, experiencing our official pledge period and preparing for our Initiation and the chapter's reactivation.
