THE HISTORY OF SAN ANGELO

San Angelo is located at the confluences of the South, Middle, and North Concho Rivers. It is 220 miles west of Fort Worth and 215 miles northwest of San Antonio. San Angelo, the county seat of Tom Green County, is on the West Texas plains at the northern edge of the Edwards Plateau and the southeastern rim of the Permian Basin.

San Angelo began its existence in 1864, but life in the area was so hazardous that the citizens asked for the protection of government troops in 1865. This request brought about the founding of Fort Concho which was the largest and best known of the western frontier posts. The settlement was across the river from Fort Concho and became known as "Over the River", although historians disagree as to where the name originated.

There are three different stories as to how the town got its name, but each of them give credit to B. J. DeWitt, a pioneer West Texas merchant. The most logical of the stories says that the settlement was originally named "Santa Angelia". The local inhabitants mispronounced the name making it "Santa Angelo". This pronunciation made the first half feminine gender and the last half masculine gender. When the name was sent to postal authorities it was converted to San Angelo.

Although San Angelo is presently the county seat of Tom Green County, it was not the original county seat. When the election was called for a county seat in Tom Green County, San Angelo was so sure of winning, because of the fact that they had the fort, the soldiers, and the government payroll, that they laid down on the job. Ben Ficklin, however, a small town three miles away on the opposite bank of the river, took a great interest in the election, and, as a result, was able to win the county seat.

On August 24, 1882, after numerous rains had already flooded much of the county, a cloud burst occurred throughout the entire area and Ben Ficklin was flooded. Of the three hundred pioneers who lived in the town, sixty-five were drowned and some of the bodies were never found. The flood was so intense that personal items that were washed out of houses were later found in the river at Austin.

Instead of rebuilding Ben Ficklin, the county seat was relocated to San Angelo and the homeless were given land upon which to rebuild. The population of San Angelo was said to be 800 after the flood. J. G. Preusser, one of the first Justices of the Peace in the county, was the first mayor of San Angelo.

In the early 1900's, the area to the south and west of San Angelo developed into the greatest section in the United States for raising cattle, sheep, wool, and mohair. To the north and east, numerous farms produced large crops of cotton, oats, wheat, and grain sorghums. This agricultural production all around San Angelo caused the city to become known as the "Trading Post" of the southwest.

The discovery of oil nearby in 1923 added to the growth of the city, and by 1940, San Angelo had a population of 25,802. The Board of City Development lists the present population at 74,127.

The region has a wide economic base of trade and service industries, agriculture, oil and gas production, industry, tourism, and government activities. Because of its many lakes and rivers, Tom Green County has more running water than any other county in the state, therefore, San Angelo is the principle tourist area in West Texas. Agriculturally, the city is the "Wool Capital of the World" and home of the National Miss Wool of America pageant. More wool is marketed through San Angelo than any other inland city in the world. The principle government activity is Goodfellow Air Force Base, a Security Service Command training center. Some of the major industries in San Angelo are Armour and Company, Ethicon, and Levi Strauss.

From a rugged frontier town, San Angelo has developed to a modern city. Along with San Angelo's growth, Angelo State College has grown and prospered at a rapid rate and has become an educational institution worth of praise.

A HISTORY OF ANGELO STATE COLLEGE

In September of 1928 San Angelo College opened its doors for the first time. The people who were involved in that first small college had a dream of a four-year college for San Angelo. The dream came true 37 years later when Angelo State College became a reality. Our college is the product of the hopes and dreams of farsighted people who fought hard and long to gain their goal. We are all part of a dream that has come true--the dream of Angelo State College.

Originally organized as a part of the city schools of San Angelo, San Angelo College opened its doors in 1928 to an enrollment of 112 students. On September 1, S.A.C. became a separate Junior College District encompassing the entire area of Tom Green County. The 58th Legislature of Texas created a new state-supported, four-year institution offering the bachelor's degree to be known as Angelo State College. The transfer of authority from the local Board of Trustees to the Board of Regents of State Teachers-Colleges became effective September 1, 1965. Presently A.S.C. has an approximate enrollment of 2,100 students.

Time passes quickly at A.S.C., and soon we will find ourselves at a signpost directing us in the paths that education has paved. Our future, like the future of Angelo State College is great and bright.

Gentlemen:

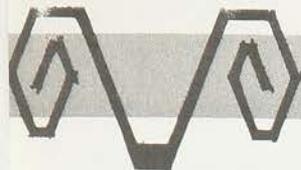

The local professional business fraternity on the campus of Angelo State College is making a request for affiliation with Delta Sigma Pi. It is a pleasure to endorse this petition in behalf of a very fine group of young men. At Angelo State College, which dates back to 1928 as a two-year college, but which has been a four-year college since 1965 only, students in the field of Business lead to the Bachelor's Degree in Accounting and General Business Administration. Approximately 561 students were enrolled in the various programs in Business Administration during the fall semester which has just closed. It has been our pleasure to attend programs on more than one occasion which the young men of our local professional business fraternity have sponsored. Without exception, they have demonstrated ability to organize proceedings in a proper and pleasing manner, with both club business and the special features of their programs.

There is a definite need for a group of interested male students to acquire an affiliation such as membership in Delta Sigma Pi would make available. The President and other appropriate administrative officers of Angelo State College pledge themselves to the support of such an arrangement, and enthusiastically endorse the petition of our local group.

Yours very truly,

R. M. Cavness

Gentlemen:

This letter is being written as part of Alpha Sigma Chi's petition for membership in Delta Sigma Pi. I am pleased to be able to recommend this group to you for consideration.

Angelo State College, a state supported, co-educational, senior college, is the most recent addition to the state system of higher education in Texas. The college has been in existence as Angelo State College since September, 1965. It will be eligible for full membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools next November. The accreditation, if granted, will become retroactive to include this year's graduating class.

The Department of Business Administration has degree programs in accounting and in general business. Recent approval by the Board of Regents will permit us to offer areas of concentration in marketing, management and finance. There are presently 248 majors in the Bachelor of Business Administration Program. There is a distinct need on this campus for an association in this field which is recognized by an international fraternal brotherhood.

Please be advised that the business men of this community and members of Delta Sigma Pi in particular have been most helpful in assisting the development of this organization.

I have been privileged to be associated with our Alpha Sigma Chi. The officers and membership of this group have already demonstrated that they are young men of the highest order, and the sponsors of the organization are lending considerable support to the development of it.

I, therefore, am extremely pleased to be able to pledge my support and the support of this office to the continuing development of Alpha Sigma Chi and recommend heartily its approval as a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

Sincerely,

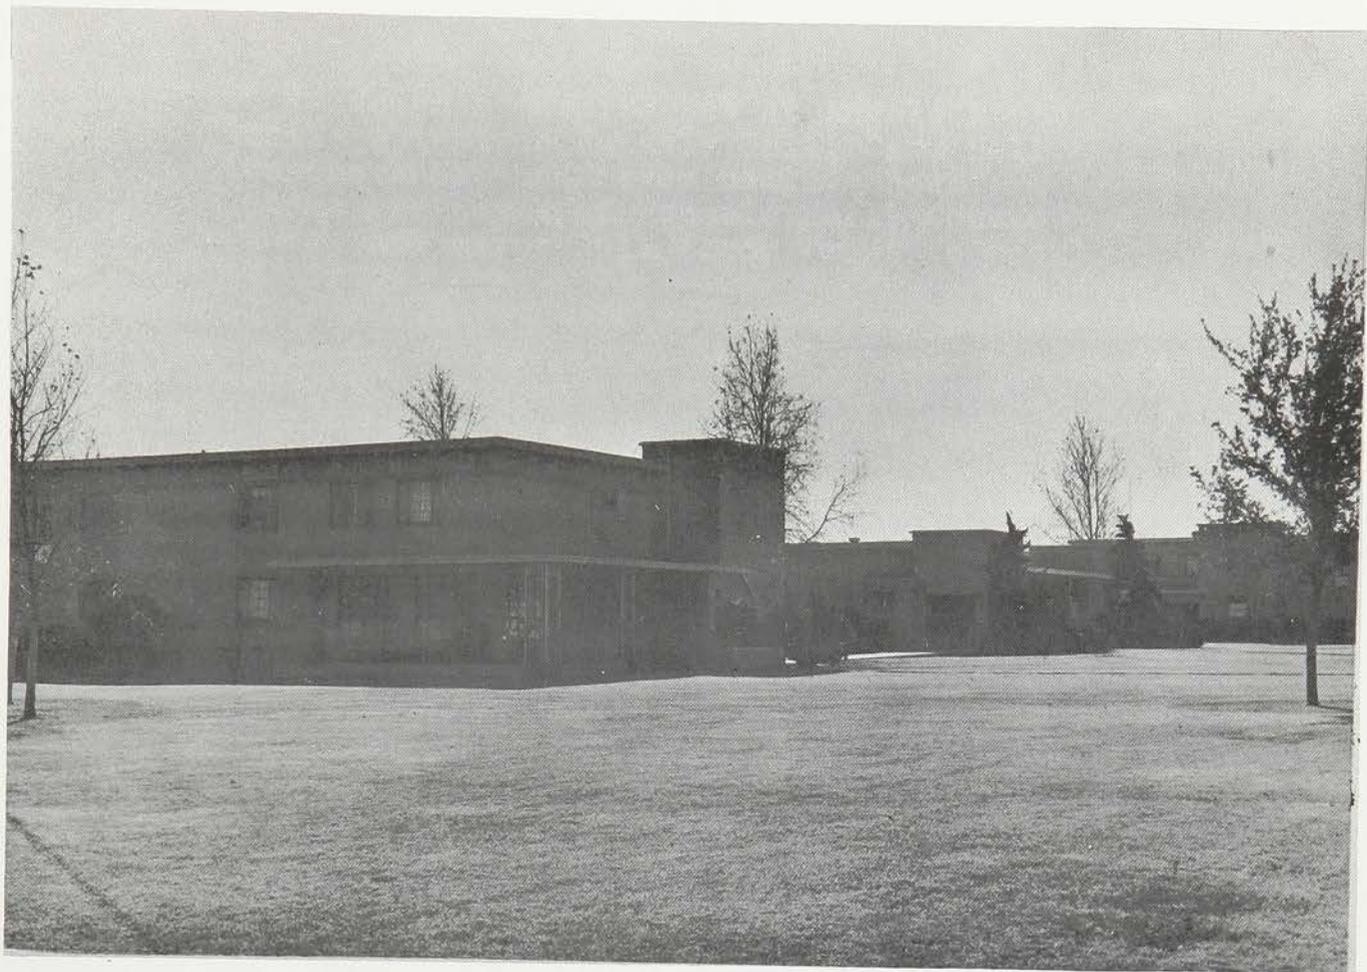

Harmon Lowman
Dean of the College

The Administration Building at Angelo State College houses the office of the President of the College. The present library is located in the east end of the Administration Building, and the Auditorium is located in the west end of the Administration Building. English, Social Sciences, Fine Arts, and Foreign Languages are taught in this building.

The Student Union Building at Angelo State College is a center of activity on the campus. Art Exhibits are displayed and various classes are taught in the Center Theater in the building. The Student Union Building also houses the Angelo State College Boodstore.

Women's dormitories at Angelo State College include Runnels Hall, Carr Hall, Concho Hall, and Mayer Hall. Shown above are parts of Runnels Hall, Concho Hall, and Mayer Hall (from front to back).

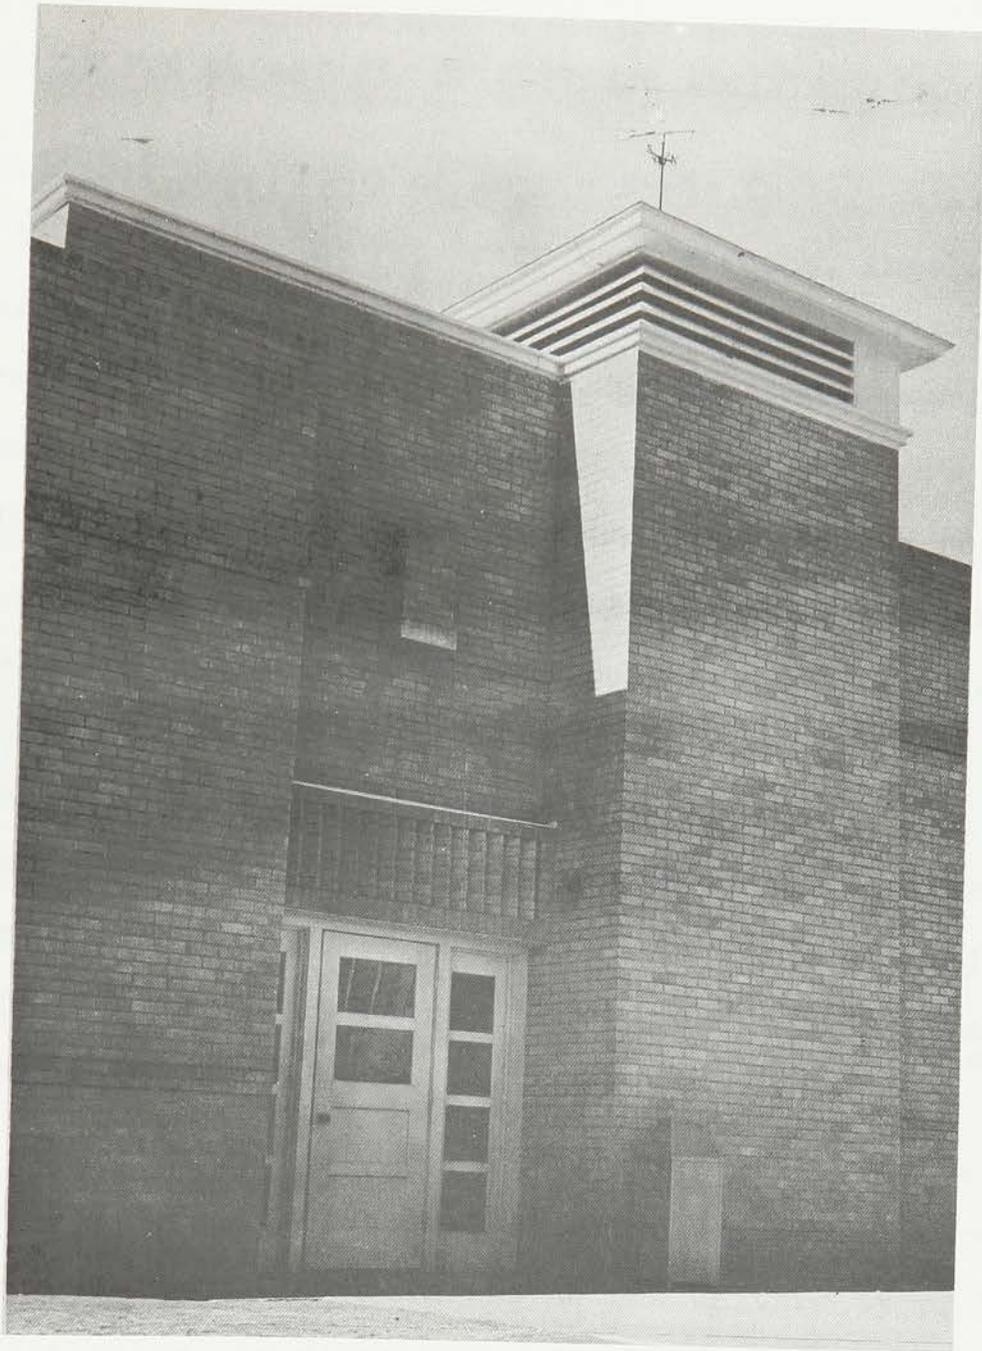

The Science Building is the future home of the Business Administration Department. A new Science Building is being constructed on the south side of the campus. Business, Chemistry, and Math are now being taught in the Science Building. The new Science Building is supposed to be completed in the Spring of 1968.

The Rosemont Apartments serve as part of the housing facilities for male students. The Rosemont Apartments were first for dormitories in the fall of 1964. New plans are in the making for the construction of new dormitories on the Angelo State College Campus.

The picture above shows the new library building that is now being constructed at Angelo State College. The new library is supposed to be ready for use by September of 1967.

The Business Administration Building at Angelo State College serves as the center of the records portion of the college. The B.A. Building contains the Data Processing equipment and many business courses meet in the building.

HISTORY OF THE DEPARTMENT OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

The Business Department of Angelo State College will be two years old in September, 1967. Prior to that time, Angelo State College was classified as a junior college. Business preparation courses were offered with an Associate Degree after the completion of two years in the study of business.

In September, 1965, Angelo State College became a four year school and Dr. Bill Bishop was the first head of the Business Department. After being head of the Department of Business for one year, Dr. Bishop resigned and went back to his former school, the University of Missouri, to take a teaching job.

In September, 1966, Mr. Robert See became acting head of Business Department. Mr. See served in this capacity until November of 1966 when he was replaced with the present head of the Business Department, Mr. R. B. Vinson. Mr. Vinson is still serving as head of the Business Department, and is proving to be very capable and effective in this capacity. Mr. Vinson has also completed work on his Doctorate at the University of Missouri, and is now finishing his dissertation.

The Business Department at Angelo State College offers three different degrees with the first graduates of Angelo State College to receive their degrees in May of 1967. The degrees are offered in General Business, Secretarial Science, and Accounting.

The General Business degree is for all students who wish to go into a business field such as Finance, Marketing, Banking, or Management. The General Business major studies in all the different fields of business and is ready to meet different problems that occur after his graduation.

The Secretarial Science degree is for all the students that wish to go into the secretarial field. The Secretarial Science majors are trained in the fields that they must fill in the every day business cycle.

The Accounting degree is for all students that wish to go into the field of accounting after graduation. Students who receive the Accounting degree are well prepared for any obstacles that might occur in public or private accounting.

Plans are already in process for the addition of a degree in some other phase of business such as Marketing or Management. A degree in either field should be offered in the next two or three years.

Mr. R.B. Vinson joined the faculty of the Department of Business Administration in September, 1966, as an assistant professor in accounting. He was made acting head of the Department in November, 1966 upon the resignation of Mr. Robert See from administrative duties.

He holds a B.A. in Accounting (1956) and an M.A. in Business Administration (1957) from Eastern New Mexico University, Portales, New Mexico. He has also completed course-work requirements for a Ph.D. in Accountancy at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Missouri, and is presently working on his dissertation.

He has been active in civic affairs and church work in Springfield, Missouri, and belongs to several civic and professional organizations. His teaching experience includes one year at Eastern New Mexico University, two years at the University of Missouri, and seven years at Evangel College, Springfield, Missouri. While at Evangel College, he served as Chairman of the Department of Business and Economics for three years.

Gentlemen:

The student officers of Alpha Sigma Chi, our local fraternity, have requested that I write concerning their proposed affiliation with your organization. I am happy to comply with their request; as I feel that your organization will be an excellent partner in enhancing the professional nature of our program.

The transformation of Angelo State College from two year to four year status has caused a tremendous growth in the size of our business department. We are constantly seeking to improve all phases of our program and the development of professional organizations is of prime importance.

The entire faculty of our department is whole-heartedly in favor of association with your organization. Such association will be an invaluable aid to our young men in the furtherance of their professional careers.

Sincerely,

R.B. Vinson, Head
Department of Business Administration

Thomas O. Kirkpatrick, our advisor, started his college education at San Angelo Junior College. After graduating from San Angelo Junior College, Mr. Kirkpatrick attended North Texas Stated University and received his Bachelors of Business Administration and Masters of Business Administration. Mr. Kirkpatrick is currently finishing his dissertation for which he expects to receive his Doctors of Business Administration degree from Ohio State University in the Spring of 1967.

Mr. Kirkpatrick has taught school at the following colleges and universities: North Texas State University,

Ohio State University, St. Mary's College, Texas A&M University, University of New Mexico, and Angelo State College. He presently teaches Management and Marketing at Angelo State College.

Gentlemen:

During the past semester, a number of young men have proceeded to organize a professional business fraternity at Angelo State College. They have selected the organizational name of Alpha Sigma Chi. Their objectives include the intention to become affiliated as a member chapter of Delta Sigma Phi. Officers and other members of the chapter have invested a great number of hours of both creative and tedious work in moving toward achievement of their objectives.

I am very proud of their efforts and the professional and mature manner in which they have proceeded thus far. If past indications are indicative of future events, they would make worthy members of Delta Sigma Pi.

I strongly recommend the members of Alpha Sigma Chi as candidates for affiliation with Delta Sigma Pi. They are demonstrating the willingness and ability to work toward achieving the objectives of Delta Sigma Pi. You can expect to receive continuing cooperation and enthusiastic interest from students and faculty at Angelo State College.

Sincerely yours,

Thomas O. Kirkpatrick
Assistant Professor
